Government Notices.

NOTIFICATION OF RESUMPTION OF LAND UNDER 48 VICTORIA, No. 36. New South Wales, to wit. By his Excellency the Right Honorable Lord Augustus William Frederick Spencer Loftus, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, a member of her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies. [L.S.] AUGUSTUS LOFTUS, Governor. WHEREAS I, the Governor aforesaid, with the advice of the Executive Council of the said colony, have duly exercised the establishment and constitution of a public park at Granville, in the said colony, and for the consideration thereof public lands are lawfully available: Now I, the Governor of the said colony, with the advice of the Executive Council of the said colony, in pursuance of the powers in this behalf given to or vested in me by the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act, do by this notification published in the Gazette and in a newspaper, that is to say, in the Sydney Morning Herald, circulated in the police districts wherein the said land is situated, declare that the land hereinafter described has been required for the public purposes therein after mentioned, that is to say, for and in connection with the construction of a public park, to the intent that upon the publication of this notification in the Gazette the legal estate in the said land shall forthwith be vested in the Minister for Public Works and his successors on behalf of her Majesty, for the purposes of the said last-mentioned Act, for an estate of inheritance in fee simple in possession, free and discharged from all trusts, obligations, rents, interest, reversions, charges, rights-of-way, or other encumbrances whatsoever, and to the intent further that the legal estate therein, together with all powers incident thereto or conferred by the said Act, shall be vested in the said Minister as a trustee, with the powers stated in the said last-mentioned Act. And I declare that the following is the description of the land hereinbefore referred to, that is to say:— County of Cumberland, parish of St. John, area 11 acres; commencing on the north-eastern side of a road 1 chain wide at the south-eastern corner of R. Harper's 23 acres; and bounded thence on the north-west by part of the north-eastern boundary of that land bearing north 3 degrees 45 minutes 37 seconds east (magnetic) 11 chains 47 links to the south-western corner of the Glebe land, area 12 acres 2 roods; thence on the north-east by part of the south-western boundary of that land bearing south 42 degrees 15 minutes 31 seconds east (magnetic) 18 chains 30 links; thence on the south-east by a line bearing south 36 degrees 14 minutes 18 seconds west (magnetic) 12 chains 71 5-10th links to the aforesaid north-eastern side of the road 1 chain wide; and thence on the south-west by that side of that road bearing north 56 degrees 18 minutes 11 seconds west (magnetic) 1 chains 73 5-10th links, to the point of commencement,—as shown on plan catalogued C. 12-2041, in the Surveyor-General's Office, being part of original portion No. 17 of subdivision of church and school lands. Given under my hand and seal, at Government House, Sydney, this eighth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, and in the forty-eighth year of her Majesty's reign. By His Excellency's command, ALEX. STUART. GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. Department of Mines, Stock Branch, Sydney. NOTICE TO STEAM LAUNCH PROPRIETORS. THE A. S. N. FRESH FOOD AND ICE CO., Limited, beg to inform their customers and the public generally that a BRANCH DEPOT has been opened at No. 21, Oxford-street, opposite the Barracks. This branch is connected by telephone with the general office in Harbour-street, so that all orders for town or suburban delivery can be transmitted on the instant. Milk, Cream, Butter, Coffee, Cocoa, &c., will be sold at this branch, and special arrangements have been made with Messrs. Fry and Sons for the supply of the latter, the Company being sole agent that the coffee, by tasting this milk, will at once recognize its superiority over other sources of supply. The delivery now exceeds 120 gallons daily. Specimens of the Ice manufactured by the new patent are today exhibited. A large Selection of Ice Cream can be had at the Harbour-street branch, at which new machinery is being erected for the manufacture of Ice Cream on a very extensive scale, and will be ready for the coming season. Ice is already delivered at the evening rates 300 to 400 tons of Ice. The Company have also secured with the Sources Co., lately occupying premises adjoining their new depot, to carry on the aerated business, and will sell mineral by the pint in bottle, and take orders for larger quantities.

VETERINARY. I have just completed the most extensive arrangements for undertakers by me for housing, grazing, or stable-feeding lame and sick animals, including horses, cattle, sheep, and dogs. There are in all four different terms on which such animals can be placed and attended to. I commenced this last year, and the numbers of animals for whom I am followed me to extend this part of my business. The arrangements enable me to doctor at about half the cost. In the case of such animals as can graze, the cost is even less, for there is only the grazing charge in addition to the treatment. Horses, Cattle, Sheep, and Dogs can therefore be forwarded from any part of the colony or from any other colony, and on their arrival at the station or wharf. Just one wet Brewer from Queensland, New Zealand and India, as we produce to cure diseases which otherwise cannot be cured. JOHN PUTTIE, Principal of the Australian Sanitarium Veterinary Establishment.

PARIS, June 20.

The great Catholic festival of Corpus Christi has been celebrated here with the usual profusion of flowers, lighted tapers, and the other elements of ecclesiastical adornment. Processions through the streets being now forbidden, great crowds assembled outside the Madeleine, Saint Sulpice, and the other churches which, possessing an external colonnade within the railings that surround these buildings, are able to indulge in the splendid scenic effects of richly-robed priests, banners, flowers, reliquaries, &c., recalling the highly ornate date which is supposed to contain the Divine Presence.

In small towns and villages the procession of the Fête Dieu is still tolerated, but the attempts of certain zealous clericals to parade the streets in more important localities have led to local conflicts, happily of slight importance.

The children of this capital have been greatly delighted during the past week by the sight of half-a-dozen tiny carriages, full of youngsters of both sexes, drawn by Lilliputian donkeys of an Algerian breed. The turn-out has been organised by a municipal councillor from Constantine, with a view of drawing attention to the distinctive but useful breed of donkeys thus exhibited. These pretty little creatures are especially remarkable for their staying powers under a heavy burden. They are no larger than big dogs, have a dark red coat, small ears, and delicate legs, and are very intelligent and trustable.

It appears that horse-breeding in France is a profitable and prosperous business. The strong percheron breed furnishes an active trade, principally with America, that is steadily on the increase. The most celebrated American trotters are said to be descended from a percheron imported into New York in 1816. The Americans formerly obtained most of their heavy draught horses from the Clyde Valley; the defective roads and heavy soil of the prairies of the New World required something stronger than the long, thin, light horses of the country, and the massive Scotch horses continued to be imported until the colonists discovered that the percheron horses, equally strong, were their superiors in speed. Since then, the trade in French horses has steadily increased, and reached, last year, a total of eight millions of francs. The total cost of these horses, delivered in America, averages 6000 francs, and their selling price across the water 15,000 francs. A census recently taken shows that there are, in France, 305,729 four-wheeled vehicles for common roads, 882,288 two-wheeled, and 970,189 horses or mules. The enormously heavy corts everywhere in use in the country, with their two enormous wheels and their string of three, four or five horses in line, one behind the other, are a source of wonder to tourists accustomed to the lighter four-wheeled vehicles that have taken the place of these cumbrous and unmanageable waggons in other countries.

Some comment has been caused here by the discovery that the quartz and flint-proof used so extensively in this city for the paving of roads and courts and contains gold in its nativeness, and in proportions that would yield a handsome return for its extraction. The communists will therefore have a means of reaping a harvest of wealth at their next rising, more agreeable and more profitable than cold steel and mitrailleuse bullets. The excitement caused here by the announcement of this fact is, however, mainly one of surprise and curiosity, perfectly illustrating the lack of initiative so generally observable in the French character. If the French engineers and electricians who has just made this discovery had been one of his "mates" brethren from the other side of the Atlantic, he would have formed his company, with the requisite amount of capital, and have started a set of stamping mills, before letting the golden secret out.

The public interest in the exhibition of the Crown diamonds, now on view at the Louvre, is steadily maintained. Among the crowd of gazers, a day or two ago, was Princess Metternich, who lingered long in her passage round the case which contains the precious jewels, the sight of which must have recalled to her memory the splendour of splendours when the Empress Eugenie wore those magnificent ornaments, soon to be scattered to the winds.

By the way, a well-known newspaper writer of this city, who has recently been inspecting the baptismal register of Napoleon I. at Ajaccio, was told that one of the recent visitors whose curiosity brought him to perform the same inspection, was an officer in the British navy. "Monsieur," remarked the British tar to the keeper of the archives, "I have just returned from St. Helena, where I presented the registry at Napoleon's birth. I was therefore anxious to see his certificate of birth." The writer referred to tells his readers that the officer in question was a good example of British incredulity, his visit to the registry office being evidently prompted by the determination to ascertain whether there ever was such a person as Napoleon Bonaparte.

Another popular penny-a-liner here is lecturing his fellow-countrymen on their regrettable tendency to quote (he might have said misquote) English words and phrases. He is particularly incensed at the use of such terms as "turf," "ticket," "flirtation," &c., and deprecates the dubbing of French horses with English names, as "Little Duck," "Lira," and so on. The grave old Gaulois (it changes, taking up the same lament, says there is a foreign invasion still more dangerous than that of words and names, viz., that of Italian, German, Spanish, Swiss, English, and Polish politicians, such as Garibaldi, Scheurer, Hirsch, Wandington, &c., all in places of power and influence, declaring that "this invasion of barbarians is one of the causes of French misfortunes and decadence," and winds up with the hope that "a thoroughly French Legislature will, ere long, clear all public functions from the highest to the lowest against all who are not born Frenchmen."

The protectionists are crying out for additional taxation on foreign wheat, cattle, &c. The Commission on the Sugar Monopoly, while advocating a tax on beets, as though the repeated failure of that vegetable were not rapidly destroying the beet-sugar industry in France, urges the equal taxation of native and colonial sugars, and the continuation of the system of bounties, a glorious and taking system of difficult understanding, by the advocates of free trade.

In curious contrast with this demand for protection at home, is the indignation expressed on every side at the proposed duty on foreign works of art by the American Government.

Victims of rheumatism and gout may be glad to learn that, if they fail to cure themselves by the absorption of as many strychnine as they can stomach (to avoid low, the now fashionable prescription against these cognate maladies, they may get rid of their miseries by going to Amsterdam and putting themselves under the care of the renowned Dr. Metzger, who has just effected a brilliant cure in the person of the Empress of Austria, who declares to all about her that she has not the faintest trace of these allied ailments undergoing his course of massage. This cure has induced the Archduchess Marie to go for treatment, with her husband, the Archduke Reinier (Francis Joseph's brother), to the Dutch capital, to put herself under the care of the new renowned practitioner.

Royalty and its opponents are equally subject to these distressing diseases; the fact that Garibaldi was a martyr to rheumatism might have been cited as an example of this suggestive solidarity, were it not that an inscription recently discovered under the pulpit of the church of San Antonio di Pontrel, the inscription dating from the eighth century, shows conclusively that the Garibaldi family, from which the hero of Italian independence descended, was the remains of a line of Lombard kings who took refuge at Chiavari in the fifth century.

The French Government, memorialised from various quarters in reference to the rule wrought to so many by the famous zaining-palace of Monaco (against which Queen Victoria is said to have expressed her sentiments, through Lord Lyons to M. Grevy), appears to be slowly making up its mind to insist on its suppression. The Prince of Monaco is a Sovereign, and the renowned "hell," from which he derives his income, can only be suppressed with his consent, and, ostensibly, by his authority. But the treaty existing between this principality and France is susceptible of large interpretation, and the protectorate of France can be made to subserve the will of the latter. And it really seems probable that the perseverance of those who have formed a league for ridding the exquisite shore of the great inland sea of the plague spot, which has so long contaminated it, will ere long be a thing of the past. The gaming establishment under its new management has been planning to strengthen its position, on the basis of a chartered company, with a capital of 800,000,000 francs. This ludicrous project for the stocking of pigeons will probably hasten the decision of the French Government to do away with it altogether.

The bird-charmer, M. Picard, who claims to be able to cause wild birds to establish themselves in any tree at his pleasure, and to stay there, has just accepted a challenge from a gentleman residing in this city, which is as follows:—Twelve birds will be placed in a cage and given to the charmer on the appointed day, at 2 p.m. The birds will be set at liberty, and by 3:15 p.m. all the birds must alight upon two small trees, which will be placed 200 hundred yards from the starting point. Should the bird fail to accomplish this feat, the charmer will forfeit 1000 francs for each bird that does not reach the tree. On the other hand, the challenger will pay the same sum for each bird if the feat is successfully accomplished.

The Paris wheelmen have just held their annual meeting at the Winter Circus; their debates have allorded subject of reflection for the public who have read, with no little indignation, the shower of angry protests uttered by those purveyors of the national beverage against the laws which endeavour to restrain the "liberty" of these gentlemen in dealing with the liquid which passes through their establishments. They are preparing to agitate for the repeal of the law which prescribes certain conditions of weight, and regulate the amount of water whose admixture is to be tolerated by the fiscal authorities of the country. The angry opponents of British ale may be much better as they please with what they sell as wine, and of their drinks and to be relieved of the restraints of the present legislation on the subject, has naturally evoked the indignant reflection of the public, which prefers to mix with its wine the amount of water it chooses to absorb.

POLICE AND COURT-MARTIAL NEWS FROM NEW CALEDONIA.

During the fortnight ending the 27th July there were 78 prisoners and 25 re-arrests, of which the name and number of the escapes, and the fact of the flight or recapture, is simply recorded.

A court-martial, held on the 8th July, was occupied successively with the trial of 12 other escapes who had been re-taken. The New Caledonian of July 12 publishes the statements of some, remarking that "the reasons given by those interesting organisers people are not without a certain charm." Here they are:—

Vernoil declared that he had run away because, not having received any pecuniary assistance during the months he was at the Government camp at Yenge, disgust seized him from those days that the law are accorded to others more guilty than he were relieved to him. This was his seventh escape, for he had been done days absent. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, in irons.

Marmoir absented himself because he will not to give himself up at Paris, to escape the hostilities and bruish treatment of the convalescents. He was under two years, his term expires in 1891. To this sentence has been added five years' hard labour.

Pouvet, who had escaped for the sixth time, whose term will expire in 1885, stated that he left his work because he had had enough of it. He escaped, judging satisfied that of means where had made him bide for 24 hours in the Government garden, asleep two days' hard labour to the sentence. He was in irons and subjected to the dispatch of all kinds in the year 1882, in point of convictions.

Harport, also an artist in escapes, in robbery, and in robbery, escaped, as he said, without knowing what he was doing. He was sentenced. At to bed from the days away the escaped declared to escape his excuse, and implored his sentence of five years more. His trouble will be easy in 1891.

Have escaped Pellette is the criminal who escaped about two and a half years ago, went to France, was on board ship, and re-taken in New Caledonia after a series of extraordinary adventures. This is his fifteenth escape. He was sentenced to five years, in irons at the expiration of the residential Nouméa for a term of his liberty. With the five years now added his term will expire in 1897.

On July 17, between 3 and 4 o'clock p.m., a robbery was committed at the house of Professor Hudsler, in Port-Boisé district. The stolen property consisted of jewelry, namely (10) francs, and a loaded revolver. The conduct Chambrial, No. 15,650, who escaped about the same time, is suspected. Chambrial's wife arrived for the Dupuy de Lôme, and was sent on to Bourail. Verlaille the husband, assisted in what the witnesses will be in his mind, has also been brought to the prisoner.

"The Hero Moon has been opposed by the police in Nouméa carrying a revolver. Not during to account for his possession of the revolver, for fear of compromising those who had sold it to him, he was suspected of stealing it. One officer, however, pointed out that Mollis, though innocent of theft, was guilty of carrying prohibited arms. The leads are to remind the police that in Nouméa, and also in the colonies, any of the Mollis possess firearms. For this offence Mollis has been sentenced by the Council of War to one day's imprisonment. The court admitted extenuating circumstances in his favour, as much for his young impression as for his good conduct since. He received his permit.

"The convict Blanch, after a series of petty thefts and petty extraordinary disguises, has been re-arrested at Thio with a false ticket-of-leave in the name of Breton, with which he hoped to get beyond the reach of punishment; he declares that he is the victim of an infamous scheme, and that his accusers were the thieves, and that they tried to poison him. The convict, in spite of his denunciations, has condemned him to two years' imprisonment, and 10 years under supervision.

"Twenty-one escapes, among whom are many from Thio, have been condemned by the Council of War, some to ten years, others to 5 years' work in the saloon, or in irons. Amongst these individuals all escaping for the same cause, 'want of food,' 'ill-treatment by inspectors,' 'remonstrance,' &c., there is one comfort. Barbier, No. 10,037, is acquitted; he has been a prisoner among the most irritable his last flight lasted three years and four months, and he hopes yet to get away entirely. His term expires in 1911."

"On the 19th July, during the night, a small fire broke, moved in the top of the Rivolin Shopping in Mt. Dore, was stolen by two escapes. Once in possession of the food, and finding it too small for them to venture out to sea, they stowed for a larger vessel moored in the bay. Unfortunately for them unfortunately, a man was sleeping on board, suddenly awoke and raised his cabin boy to escapes. Unarmed he could not resist the pistol, and the thieves escaped. A search has been made along the coast in vain. The lost one afterwards found at the Isle of Nou quite empty, and had been sent adrift. The two escapes are doubtless hiding in the rubbish of Nouméa."

The Jury-decisions of the 18th July were:—

"We have to day to report a very serious occurrence. The convict Vassal, No 12,956, has been arrested on the valley of the Ile by the local police, about 1 p.m. on the 15th. He was the author of the robbery in the Quartier Latin against Hilaire, which consisted of a watch, several articles of clothing, and a sum of money. The clothes were found hidden in the mountain near, but nothing more. Questioned as to what had become of the other things, Vassal declared that he had been robbed by two soldiers. On the 14th he met them on a bye-path in the Quartier Latin, and had several glasses with them. Suddenly he was completely drunk, and fell asleep under the table. When he awoke the soldiers had left, taking with them his watch and money. After this information the police tried to find the accused. They had left no trace when they had arrived. They were however, soon caught and searched by the police officers from the barracks. Nothing was found upon them. One of the police officers proceeded to the place of the robbery, but the men were long gone. He raised it and the watch, which had been concealed in his sample, fell to the ground. The escapes is to be confronted with the victim.

"The soldiers is the inevitable consequence of the intercourse between the soldiers and the people, which every one has remarked. In the public-houses they are seen drinking together, addressing each other 'thou' and 'thou,' in the street and, and in spite of strict rules, one meets soldiers and noncommissioners of the street hand walking arm-in-arm. It is quite time to put a stop to these dangerous relations, which were well prepared to prove, and to represent the consequence of such deeds. The honour of the French uniform ought to be protected by energetic measures."

RABBIT NUISANCE ACT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I crave space in your valuable journal to try and throw a little light on the working of the above Act and the newly passed scale of rates for the payment of rabbiters, &c., all over the colony, which I consider is a mistake, and will endeavour to show that one rate of wages, 6s., will not answer for all the rabbit-infested districts. The rate I refer to is wages 15s. per week, and 3d. per scalp, including 10s. per week rations; or 6d. per scalp, and neither wages nor rations allowed.

Take for instance from Boolgal Station, on the Lachlan, down the river to the Victorian and South Australian Border, each man employed rabbiting will average 100 rabbits per week at 3d.—£1 5s.; wages 15s., rations 10s. —£1 5s.; making a total of £2 10s. per week for each man; or at 6d. each would be equal to £2 10s. Now, from Boolgal up the Lachlan River no man can average more than 20 rabbits per week, at 3d., equal to 5s.; wages 15s., rations 10s., equal to £1 5s.; making a total of £1 10s. for the week; or at 6d. each equal to 10s. per week.

The first by wages, 5s., would be £1 per week less than can be earned below Boolgal, and by scalp would be £2 per week less. Consider the rate is too high to pay in one place, and not high enough in the other. Is it to be wondered at that good rabbiters are so scarce in the thinly-infested districts when there is such a difference in the rate of payment? I think wages and 6d. per scalp should be allowed in the thinly-infested districts, and 3d. per scalp where neither wages nor rations are allowed, and 1s. per scalp be allowed to adjusters for all rabbits destroyed by them, on the production of an inspector's certificate for same. This would urge them on to work better, and a proper check could be kept on the work done. I am, &c.,

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

BRISBANE, Aug. 4.

The Parliamentary record of last week was not a bad one. Good progress was made with what the Premier called "non-contentious" business, including some bills of considerable importance, though not of a kind to excite party passions. Those passions did, however, arise over the Triennial Parliaments Bill, for reducing the life of a Parliament from five years to three. This measure was warmly opposed by the Opposition, who ultimately declared they would accept its principle if the Premier would make it applicable to the present Parliament. There was, of course, no argument to be brought forward against the proposal. The Government had argued that no Parliament can continue to represent the people properly for five years without a fresh general election, and instanced the last Parliament, which kept Sir Thomas McIlwraith in power after he had lost the confidence of the country, and the previous one which did the same for the Douglas-British Administration. There was no conceivable reason why the present Parliament should not become equally decrepit before its full term was reached, and only one or two Ministerial members ventured to affirm that it was in an exceptional manner the people's choice. But the Government had the argument of the big battalions on their side. "You want to taunt your lives for five years, and will only give us three," said Mr. Morehead. "We want to commit suicide," retorted the Ministerialists. So on Wednesday night it came near to a stonewalling scene, for the opposing sides got angry. At last the Premier moved the adjournment, and so the matter stood.

One episode of the week in Parliament was an exceedingly painful one. Mr. Miles, Minister for Works, by, I believe, a mere inadvertence, said that flattiers have led him to believe that the use of rough language and the habit of speaking first and thinking afterwards are virtues. Now, some weeks ago Gordonvale, Lakes, at Gympie, issued a report which averred mining speculators of revealing false news about mines on the field, and otherwise endeavoring to deceive the public. There was great indignation in the place, and some days ago a deputation waited on the Minister for Works and Mines, asking that Mr. Lukin's charges should be investigated. Mr. Miles refused the investigation, which, indeed, from the nature of the report, could hardly be given; and he defended Mr. Lukin, and then, apropos of wardens generally, he launched out into a violent denunciation of Warden Hodgkinson, of the Palmer. That officer had, he asserted, sent a report which was calculated to enable speculators to rob the public, and he had been paid to write it. Now the report in question had been published many weeks ago, and the Minister was, when he spoke, under no kind of restriction or censure. Naturally, when Parliament met last week, the Minister was questioned on his extraordinary outburst, but he would say nothing. The Premier made a sort of defence of his colleague, and Mr. Jordan, a thick and thin supporter of the Government, interposed with a motion for inquiry by a select committee. This motion was carried after a rather angry discussion, Mr. Miles intimating that if it exonerated Warden Hodgkinson he might resign his seat in the Cabinet. You will see what sort of a prodigious fuss this fine officer, a tried and faithful servant, who is known and respected throughout the north, is caused by the Minister of stamping brines to furnish a false report. There is to be no impartial investigation, but an investigation by a select committee, having a majority of Ministerial members, who will sit under a threat by the Minister for Works that he will resign if they find against him. And, as if to make it easy for the committee to condemn Warden Hodgkinson, the motion makes their inquiry a general one.

We shall have plenty of controversies business this week, for the second reading of the Land Bill comes on on morrow. Sir Thomas McIlwraith, however, will not be here in time for the debate, and in his absence the Opposition will be handicapped. He is expected to-

LAND REGISTRY TRANSFER.

Two bills are now before the Imperial Parliament for repealing and reforming the Middlesex Registry Office, and two more with reference to that in Yorkshire.

It is complimentary to Australia and to the distinguished author of the Australian system of Land Registration and Transfer, that the English Act of 1875 should be largely modelled on that system, and that in a matter of such paramount importance English law should follow Australian precedent; and we may note with some satisfaction that a very influential deputation only recently waited on the English Attorney-General (Sir H. Jackson), accompanied by Sir H. Torrens, to press on the Imperial Government the adoption, in its entirety, of the Torrens system, and urging legislation on the lines of the Australian Acts. "Should the Home Government decide to legislate, as this urged to do, it will be advisable (we regret to hear it claim), that any other than the colony should be looked to for imitation and guidance. Probably South Australia will be the colony whose system and practice will be most closely followed. We in New South Wales have little to boast of to proud of, and can only present to Imperial authorities a conclusion that while we have a splendid system, yet we have surrounded and hampered it with unmanageable and unworkable machinery, and have neglected the needed reform and improvement thereof.

The interest felt in real property reform in England is great, and it is based on the subject of registration of title and transfer of land. Ten years past there has been a contest going on in parliamentary, professional circles and here between the advocates of a and advocates of two final stations—the one a mere registry office for deeds giving priority in order of registration, and practically doing away with the equitable doctrines on the subject of actual or constructive notice, making it a fact that which is only applicable in England as to freehold estates in the two counties of Middlesex and Yorkshire (these being the only counties in which there have evolved of land registry) applicable to the entire kingdom, the other one providing for a complete system of registration of title and simplified form of transfer of land.

An Act to have been brought into the Imperial Parliament but owing to the want of unanimity on the part of the public, and still more of the legal profession, no satisfactory solution of this vital and important question seems likely to be arrived at.

The English Land Transfer Act of 1875 provides for a voluntary system of registration of title, and for a simple system of transfer somewhat like that known in Australia as the Torrens system, but from various reasons this Act has proved unworkable. No system of compulsory registration has as yet been adopted in England, although urgently advocated on the one hand, but as strongly opposed on other influential quarters. We must admit that the pattern of our land Registry Office is to be shunned, not copied. We can but present the exhaustive and able report of the Imperial royal commission (following a similar report of a parliamentary select committee) made years ago, and to this day absolutely ignored by Government after Government, Parliament after Parliament, to their lasting discredit, in which the most constitution and working of our Lands Titles Office is emphatically and decisively condemned: in which a complete reform therefor is reported to be a matter of urgent necessity; and in which, in a tolerably able and definite manner, the reform required is pointed out—so much so, in fact, that the local Commissioners almost sketch out the Act of Parliament required.

We must then go on to confess that Imperial authorities must look to this report, and not to our present Lands Titles Office and system, for guidance and imitation.

It not this a most humiliating position for this, the older colony, to be in? Is it not discreditable to us as a people, as well as to successive Governments, that whilst Victoria and Queensland have set about reforming similar abuses in their respective Lands Titles Office, and whilst South Australia occupies the position as from the vantage ground of superiority in this particular matter, we in New South Wales are content to be such laggards in the cause of land reform. The Torrens Imperial Government had a rare chance of trying a measure of great paramount importance under conditions so favorable, viz., a consensus of professional as well as public opinion, a report of a Parliamentary select committee, and, most important of all, such an able, exhaustive report as that of the royal commissioners.

Spain and again were the late Ministry urged by professional and lay correspondents in these columns, and we and again in a more casual way by various members of Parliament (who, however, failed to put that pressure on the late Government that the exigency of the case warranted, may demandedly, be lapsing on the lines of this report, or at least for a measure of complete reform in the matter, but all to no purpose. The present Government can hardly be congratulated on their perpetuate of action, although a bill is promised land, as we believe, on this report of the royal commissioners, "when the Land Bill is passed," although by such a bill could not have profitably been introduced and dealt with by the Upper House while the land Bill has been winding its weary way in the Assembly passes our comprehension.

Meanwhile we suppose we must be content to accept the situation, and say to the Imperial authorities—Look at, and adopt, the system of land registry transfer in which of the other colonies you will, but first come to us; we, to our system is simply formidable, it has been authoritatively and unanimously condemned. Our Governments have shamefully and in their overlasting discredit, neglected to legislate with a view to reform. We cannot help but feel that in indeed the humiliating position in which we stand, the same country is placed, and, whilst Having Ministers, it is impossible to expect successive Parliaments, or the Legislative Council, for this unfortunate and disreputable state of affairs.

ON FOREST FLORA OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

PART IV. of "The Forest Flora of South Australia" has been published. In this interesting work, the author of Adelaide, and is in no way inferior to the beautiful series of books which has preceded it. The botanical descriptions are written by Mr. J. G. Brown, F.L.S., Conservator of Forests for the Government of South Australia, and the lithographic plates have been executed by Mr. E. Spiller, Government printer. The book contains descriptions of the sub-western white gum (Eucalyptus pauciflora); the blue-gum (E. leucoxylon); the native hop (Dodonæa viscosa); the long-leaved cypress-pine (Callitris preissii), better known as the "black-leaved cypress-pine" (Callitris calcarata); the "red-gum tree" (E. camaldulensis), var. gracilis; the "red-gum" (E. rostrata), var. gracilis; the "red-gum tree" (E. rostrata); the "red-gum tree" (E. rostrata); and such description is accompanied by a large plate illustrated in colours. All the plates have been good artistically drawn, and the lithographs of the colours has been accomplished in a fully effective manner. The feature of the book is the illustration of the Halma with seeds, of which Mr. Spiller exhibits specimen of a branchlet of the species showing flowers at various stages of growth—a seedling plant, a single flower, side view of a seed, the spirit opened and showing embryo, piece of stem of bush with vertical and showing flower-stems, and a cluster of ripe fruits. It is noticeable, reference to the common-colored Kokes that up to present time the form of the species is the only one which has been found in South America. Around be Baron Sir Ferd. Mueller, it is one of the few prominent plants whose habitat extends from West Australia to South Australia. Also a fully gorgeous flower, exhibiting a wonderfully fulsome and beautiful blending of bright colours. As a handsome ornamental or shade tree, the species is certainly well worthy of cultivation in gardens. Some good specimens of the tree are to be seen in some of the private gardens in Adelaide. The inflorescence is composed of a dense cluster of scarlet common flowers, attached upon a stem or cylinder of a fleshy or pulpy substance, and these out of the upper seeds formed by the position of the leaf to the tree, wantonness attaining a length of nearly four inches. The flowering period lasts during the months of August, September, and October.

The daily bulletin of the Ministry of the Interior (the Cairo Telegraph says) reports only two crimes in that year in all Upper and Lower Egypt, namely, theft in the Greek of Alexandria. Compared with the amount of crime prevalent in other lands, it is impossible to deny that it has diminished. The interference of the English public officials in the interior has had a good effect.

SERIOUS COLLISION IN THE HARBOUR.

One of the most serious collisions that has taken place in the Harbour for a long time past occurred shortly after midnight on Saturday, near Bradley's Head, between Messrs. W. Howard Smith and Son's steamship Barrabool and the A. S. N. Company's lately acquired steamship Bilragate. The former, in command of Captain H. B. Bristow, an old and careful commander, was returning from Newcastle with coal, which was to proceed to Melbourne to-day, while the Bilragate, which was in charge of Captain A. M'Kenzie, well known as a cautious navigator, was on her way to Newcastle in ballast. There were no passengers on either vessel. The Barrabool struck the Bilragate on the starboard side forward of the port fore rigging, and crashed through about 20 feet of plating from the top deck right down below the water-line to a distance not yet ascertained. A great part of the forecabin was smashed, and the forecastle steward, who was in his berth at the time, was thrown out about 10 feet and buried in the debris, but did not receive any injury. The Barrabool's stem bulkhead was also sprung, but not so seriously as to let in much water, and 12 feet of her bow remained up like matchwood. As soon as the Barrabool commenced to sink astern the crushing and grinding was very great, arising from the fact, as was discovered afterwards, that she was keeping the greater part of her stem and bow on board the Bilragate. The mass was torn out completely, and lies in the second cabin of the Bilragate as if it had been cut out of the ordinary course of things. The Barrabool's bow, what there is left of it, is, of course, knocked completely out of shape, and as in the case of the Bilragate, it was only her watertight compartments that kept her from sinking. The damage to the Bilragate is estimated at two thousand pounds, and to the Barrabool at two hundred pounds will be required to cover the damage done to both vessels, which, at the time, were in thorough working order, the Bilragate having only recently received her usual half-yearly overhaul at the company's works. As will be seen from the statements below, the Barrabool was up to the company's wharf after the collision, but the same M'Kenzie handled his vessel so bradely, as the separated to be in a sinking state. The boat, which should be launched immediately after the collision, and Captain M'Kenzie displayed of the wheel—then with four men and four of the ship's boys in two of the launch to the other affiliated of the company. The general manager, Captain Trudgeon, the engineer superintendent, Mr. Davidson, and the shipwrights' foreman, Mr. M'Intosh, were communicated with, and they proceeded on the launch to the Bilragate, which they reached at about half-past 2 o'clock yesterday morning. After an examination of the vessel and conference, it was determined, before taking her off again, to strengthen the watertight bulkhead between the main and fore hold. In the mean time the statements below, the Barrabool, with the police launch, again proceeded to the company's works. The shipwrights' gang was waiting up, and the bulkhead was soon fitted in place, but from anxious fears this Act has proved unworkable. No system of compulsory registration has as yet been adopted in England, although urgently advocated on the one hand, but as strongly opposed in other influential quarters. We must admit that the pattern of our land Registry Office is to be shunned, not copied. We can but present the exhaustive and able report of the Imperial royal commission (following a similar report of a parliamentary select committee) made years ago, and to this day absolutely ignored by Government after Government, Parliament after Parliament, to their lasting discredit, in which the most constitution and working of our Lands Titles Office is emphatically and decisively condemned: in which a complete reform therefor is reported to be a matter of urgent necessity; and in which, in a tolerably able and definite manner, the reform required is pointed out—so much so, in fact, that the local Commissioners almost sketch out the Act of Parliament required.

We must then go on to confess that Imperial authorities must look to this report, and not to our present Lands Titles Office and system, for guidance and imitation.

Is not this a most humiliating position for this, the older colony, to be in? Is it not discreditable to us as a people, as well as to successive Governments, that whilst Victoria and Queensland have set about reforming similar abuses in their respective Lands Titles Office, and while South Australia occupies the position as from the vantage ground of superiority in this particular matter, we in New South Wales are content to be such laggards in the cause of land reform. The Torrens Imperial Government had a rare chance of trying a measure of great paramount importance under conditions so favorable, viz., a consensus of professional as well as public opinion, a report of a Parliamentary select committee, and, most important of all, such an able, exhaustive report as that of the royal commissioners.

Spain and again were the late Ministry urged by professional and lay correspondents in these columns, and we and again in a more casual way by various members of Parliament (who, however, failed to put that pressure on the late Government that the exigency of the case warranted, may demandedly, be lapsing on the lines of this report, or at least for a measure of complete reform in the matter, but all to no purpose. The present Government can hardly be congratulated on their perpetuate of action, although a bill is promised land, as we believe, on this report of the royal commissioners, "when the Land Bill is passed," although by such a bill could not have profitably been introduced and dealt with by the Upper House while the Land Bill has been winding its weary way in the Assembly passes our comprehension.

Meanwhile we suppose we must be content to accept the situation, and say to the Imperial authorities—Look at, and adopt, the system of land registry transfer in which of the other colonies you will, but first come to us; we, to our system is simply formidable, it has been authoritatively and unanimously condemned. Our Governments have shamefully and in their overlasting discredit, neglected to legislate with a view to reform. We cannot help but feel that in indeed the humiliating position in which we stand, the same country is placed, and, whilst Having Ministers, it is impossible to expect successive Parliaments, or the Legislative Council, for this unfortunate and disreputable state of affairs.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Abbott, S.M., disposed of the business at the above court on Saturday.

Thomas Simpson and William Tuggett were charged with riotous behaviour, and being found guilty were each fined 40s., in default seven days imprisonment.

George Sampson was fined £5, in default two months' imprisonment, for having made use of obscene language in a public place.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Mr. Marsh, S.M., disposed of the business on Saturday.

A number of fares were fined for drunkenness, and for having used obscene language.

Gustavus Ring, of Quay 34, charged with having used obscene language within hearing of persons passing in Loftus-place, Water-a Boy, was fined 10s., with the option of a week in gaol for 24 hours.

George Hudson, 21, described as a stonecutter, was fined £1, in default four months' imprisonment, for having been drunk and disorderly in Millers-street. He was fined £10, in default three months' imprisonment, for having used obscene language in Bray-street, and was ordered to pay two months for having assaulted Constable Curtis while in the execution of his duty. Witnesses were further charged with having assaulted Constable Beddington. In the case the prosecutor deposed that he had at the Darling-street Wharf, on Friday, about half-past 6 o'clock on Friday morning in the presence of others, including the James Cameron, summed to enter the hotel; he saw they were disorderly, and decided to be informed of their behaviour. Hudson, forced their way into the house and had with one and, and they were William stress him, and he detected that on the forehead. The prisoner was ordered to be imprisoned for two months. James Cameron, 46, described as a fireman, was fined £1, in default three months' imprisonment, for having been drunk in Cross-street. He was ordered to be imprisoned for three months for having assaulted Thomas Hedlington, and was fined £5, in default three months' imprisonment, for having used obscene language in the bar of the Darling-street Wharf Hotel. These prisoners belong to the Harwich class. The man Cameron is well known to the police, and was one of those who appeared in custody at the prisoner in connection with the Woolloomooloo outrage. Both prisoners behaved in a defiant manner on the dock, and William, on being sentenced, stated that such would have a million upon him; that he had only just commenced of gaol, having served a sentence of a month for using obscene language; and that he wished the magistrate would sentence him to be flogged.

NEWTOWN POLICE COURT.

Mr. T. Kingsley Abbott, S.M., presided on Saturday.

Andrew Jaraquy, a man brandishing by profession, had his fellow was much swollen, and retiring from the profession. He was discharged, with a recommendation for admission to the Prince Alfred Hospital.

William Patrick Chenery was granted an undertaker's license, on special evidence.

CORONERS INQUESTS.

On Saturday forenoon the city coroner, Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., held an inquest at Prince Alfred Hospital, on the body of Charles William Burrows, an adjutant of a steamer, who died of the above institution on the 9th instant, from the effects of injuries accidentally received on the previous evening. Dr. James Black, who was in charge of the deceased, stated that the time of the occurrence, stated that the deceased and witness went to the hospital with a horse and cutter for the purpose of removing a dead body, and while they were in the act of lifting the cutter on a plank in the shell-room, the deceased fell backwards from the top of the cutter. Robert Dampier, caretaker of the mortuary, stated that he opened the door of the shell-room to allow the deceased and witness to remove a body, and while he (witness) was engaged making some repairs in connection with the removal of the body, he heard deceased, who was in the act of lowering the end of the coffin on to the plank, fall backwards to the bottom of the cellar; witness assisted the deceased out of the cellar, the horse he was mounted on his legs, and had apparently been drinking. Other deceased fell witness at same went for the Jenkins, who came and dressed the wounded by the fall. Dr. Jenkins, Medical Superintendent at the Hospital, gave evidence as to finding deceased in the cellar of the shell-room with a scalp wound on the right side of his head, which was bleeding freely; after dressing the wound he was of opinion that deceased had died from concussion of the brain, consequent upon fracture of the skull. After a short deliberation, the jury found that deceased died from the effects of injuries accidentally received, that they were of opinion that sufficient provision had not been made in the shell-room to prevent accidents. Mr. Jenkins, solicitor, watched the case on behalf of friends of deceased.

The City Coroner also inquired on the same afternoon at the Royal Double Bay Hotel, Woollahra, touching the death of Rebecca Eugene Austin, Alfred William Austin, a cab proprietor, residing in Hunter-street, Paddington, who had also aged 56 years and a cultivator of tomatoes; witness had got up about 8 a.m. on Friday last, leaving deceased in bed in apparently her usual health, and went to the yard to attend to his horses and cabs; after finishing his work he returned to the bedroom, where deceased was lying in the bed upon food, with the washhand basin lying alongside her; witness at once went for a doctor; deceased had been recently afflicted, about three weeks previously, by the Fitzhalls, but complaint being gone in the head and spine; the doctor prescribed for her, and she apparently got all right after. Dr. Williams, of Darlinghurst-road, stated that he was called in to see deceased on Friday, but on his arrival found her dead; had since made a post-mortem examination of the body, and found that the cause of death was congestion of the epiglottis. The jury found a verdict accordingly.

MUNICIPAL GAS BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The decision arrived at by the Legislative Council not to refer this bill to a select committee is, as regards the public or consumers, very unfortunate, for in several respects it makes the bill as it stands, a worse bill than it was. Clause 24 provides for testing of gas, but in a most imperfect manner, for it requires only a test of its illuminating power and the presence of sulphureted hydrogen, and yet no test is a sufficient one for the purpose required, and the mode of testing, sulphureted-hydrogen is never found in any appreciable extent even by a much more extensive testing than is here prescribed. But the two most important tests, viz., those for sulphur and ammonia, are entirely omitted. Anyone conversant with the matter would have known that these are the most deleterious impurities, and especially injurious to our persons, furniture, books, &c.

By clause 20 a certain pressure of gas is to be maintained from street to mains, but no direction is given that the testing for this and also for impurities shall be carried out during the hours. In England this is rigidly enforced, and the reports are sent off to the various authorities for delivery next morning, against any complaints may be at once verified, which would be impossible after the following day.

LECTURES.

THE INFLUENCE OF FREE TRADE ON WAGES.

On Saturday night a lecture on "The Influence of Free Trade on Wages; or, why Working Men should be Free traders," was delivered by Mr. R. B. Wise, barrister-at-law, in the large hall of the School of Arts. There was a good attendance, and the lecture was not only listened to throughout with marked attention, but the lecturer's arguments were frequently applauded.

His Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER occupied the chair, and, in introducing Mr. Wise to the meeting, said that when asked to take the chair he had very much pleasure in agreeing to do so, as Mr. Wise was a member of the profession to which he had the honour of belonging; he was also a native of Sydney, and during his short career had taken not only a warm interest in the affairs of that institution, of which he was a member, but had been, he believed, a member of the committee. Besides that Mr. Wise had taken a warm interest in every question affecting the interest of the working classes. He had much pleasure in complying with Mr. Wise's request, he he had great pleasure in seeing a son of Australia, one who had distinguished himself in other colonies, taking such great interest on a question worthy of the highest consideration. There were no doubt prejudices as well as freetraders present, but he was sure they would all give the lecturer a calm and fair hearing. The lecturer came to discuss the question, not from a political, but an abstract point of view—a question which was of such deep importance, not only to statesmen, but to philanthropists and philosophers (Applause.)

Mr. R. B. Wise said he had not come there to make any reference to contemporary politics. Upon the question of whether, in a country like ours, protection was a more desirable policy than free trade, he did not propose to enter. His object was rather to deal in a general way with the doctrine of free trade as they affected wages, and if with the practical effects which it had in have a very special application to the condition and circumstances. His purpose was to get before them an aspect of free trade which had not been generally regarded, namely, its influence upon the distribution of wealth as distinguished from its influence upon the production of wealth. Protection, as a rule, doubtless helped the figures of production. They noticed out that the trade of England had advanced by leaps and bounds, that eight free trade was introduced. He brought ten, returns were 10 times what they were, the quantity of national wealth was fairly greater, and the population increasing with an unprecedented rapidity. They pointed to the tables of exports, to the growing activity of the domains of industry, to the many signs of English industry and enterprise in every quarter of the globe; and telling out their columns of magnificent statistics, they reported the world to be convinced. But the matter of concern to working-men was not so much that goods should be produced in plenty, as that the producers should have more money. To men who have not the means of purchase the fact that the production of wealth depends upon the operation of free trade, free trade must be justified in quite another way than by a catalogue of its effects on production. They must be able to show that free trade has some effect on raising wages, and that while augmenting new drifts, it also gives the means of satisfying them by dispensing most articles of consumption, and by bringing about the conditions most favourable to a fair distribution of wealth, and most conducive to any permanent and lasting rise in the average standard of comfort. It was not in this respect alone that many free-trade advocates had missed their mark and lost many opportunities of those whom they attempted to convert. some of them officially, and others from unpopularity, allowed their doctrine to be confounded with that wrong principle of government which was at the time, of all others, the most baleful in the world—the principle of the sufficiency of direct taxes, "let alone" and on supply raised was that misfortunes confusion of ideas that even in Radical newspapers was not uncommon for free trade to be identified with a system of unrestricted competition, or free trade unless in supplies of a very moderate or free trade principle. Right and wrongly, however, we from helped that the results of their doctrine might be fairly represented by that opinion, which was a very common one, and which had been very actively in their behalf, and freedom of contract meant to them a sounding phrase so long as they were driven by the helplessness of their condition to contract wherever might be offered in the way of terms. It was every effort to disabuse their minds of that idea by the doctrine of so-called freetraders, although it should be remembered that most of those who were popularly and further charged with having conceded to free trade were Protectionists, inclined to that declining school of political economy which, in strict the action of the State should be half-point of which on Friday morning in the presence of others, including the James Cameron, summed to enter the hotel; he saw they were disorderly, and decided to be informed of their behaviour. Hudson, forced their way into the house and had with one and, and they were William stress him, and he detected that on the forehand. represent the Church in this House; and then came, in my opinion, the greatest change of all, when the House was swamped under GEORGE III. and Mr. PITT." This reconstruction under the House of Hanover was not done as one act, but was done during the course of the longest reign known to English history. When GEORGE III. came to the throne there were less than 150 British peers, for, though there were 174 on the list, 13 were minors and 12 were Roman Catholics. During his reign he created no fewer than 388 peers. That is considerably more than twice as many as he found. These figures show how very modern a large portion of the House of Lords is. It represents the landed interest, but it by no means represents the old feudal aristocracy. The really old families have died out, and have been superseded by fresh children of fortune. What is perhaps curious, though hardly wonderful, is that much of the new blood has shown itself more conservative than the old stock, for on the first reading of the first Reform Bill only four of the old peers, that is of those who were created before 1790, voted against it, while 104 voted for it, leaving a majority of 100 in its favour on behalf of the really ancient aristocracy. The bill was thrown out by the new Lords, who owed their legislative position to the favour of Mr. PITT.

But though the House of Lords contains very men who are there because they or their ancestors were wealthy landed proprietors, and secured Royal or Ministerial favour, the Earl of ROSEBERY is anxious to guard against the opinion that the House consists only of fortunate nominees. So far from that, it contains, in proportion to its numbers, more distinguished men—men of personal merit, and who by their services have won distinguished positions—than any other legislative body. He analysed the list, and showed that it contained 27 Bishops (all of whom had won their rank by proved merit), 24 Cabinet Ministers, 21 Ambassadors, 4 Governors-general or Governors-principal, 4 ex-Speakers of the House of Commons, 4 very eminent Judges, 2 Lord Chancellors, 2 Field-Marshals (exclusive of the blood royal), 49 Admirals, Generals, and Ministers who have not been in the Cabinet, one Poet Laureate, and one Senior Wrangler, besides a second poet in the person of Lord ROSSMORE. Here are 110 persons who for individual merit will compare, man for man, with corresponding personages in any other legislative assembly; and yet, with this good material in it, he admitted that the House of Lords did not have its proper weight with the country.

He thought that changes had taken place in the community which had not produced corresponding changes in the constitution of the House, and two of those he especially indicated as being the rise of the newspaper press and the rise of the colonial empire. That noble lords are not wholly indifferent to the press is indicated by an amusing historical incident to which he referred when objecting to the small quorum of four which was sufficient to keep the House together. He reminded the House of an occasion when a noble lord spoke for four hours, simply to the Chairman on the woolsack and the Minister who had to answer him. No one would have done this if there had not been such an institution as the press. The speaker was really talking to a wider audience than the unhappy Minister whom he kept fixed as tightly as Coleridge's Ancient Mariner.

The Earl of ROSEBERY did not hesitate to give it as his opinion that the House would gain if the complex interests of the country were better represented. He pointed out that amongst the religious bodies there was no one to represent the Dissenting interest, amongst the professions no one to represent medicine or science, very little representation of literature, and not enough of commerce, which is really the source of the wealth of the country. Nor was the colonial empire represented by men who had taken a part in its government; nor were there any to speak sympathetically for the great labour interest. Even the landed interest had representatives of only one side, as there were too many who received rents, and too few who paid them.

In the earlier days the House of Lords was fully representative of the governing classes, for when the Church governed the Church was supreme in the Upper House, and when the by nobility governed the lay nobles were supreme. But now neither the Church nor the landed interest is the governing power in the community. They monopolise neither the wealth nor the intellect nor the control of the voting power. The House of Commons has escaped altogether from its tutelage, while the rise of the middle classes, and the political emancipation of the working classes, have altogether shifted the centre of political gravity. The House of Lords now represents only a fraction of the community, and it is this fact which creates so much disturbance when it opposes itself seriously to the will of the Lower House.

Another and a very forcible illustration has occurred of the difficulty of punishing brutal or sadistical husbands without in many cases inflicting considerable injury on their wives and families. A few days ago a woman prosecuted her husband before the Denilquin Bench for not helping to maintain her and their seven children. All he had contributed towards their support for the past three months was the sum of £2, though well able to earn good wages. The Bench ordered him to pay £1 per week for twelve months, and to find sureties to the amount of £52 for the fulfilment of the order, or to go to gaol for twelve months. The man declared that he could not obtain the sureties. The prospect of twelve months' incarceration seemed a mild punishment to the husband, but it startled the wife. She did not wish him to be sent to gaol, for the very solid reason that "he would have no chance of earning the money;" but the magistrates were inexorable. If the man could not get the sureties, there was little hope of his earning the money he was ordered to pay. And to pay he went, and so far as any help from him is concerned, his wife is upon the law has placed her and the seven children in a worse position than ever. No wonder, with such results staring them in the face, wives bear the most cruel treatment rather than seek the protection of the law. No, doubt the magistrates in this case sympathised with the ill-used dependents on the ruffian of whom they sought to make an example, but while he will be well fed, and it may be said well cared for, those whom he has wronged are condemned to suffering, if not starvation. It is really difficult to suggest a remedy for this anomalous state of things; but as such men as the one alluded to above are not criminals in the ordinary sense, could not a value be set upon their labour (and they should be made to work), from which their indigent families might receive something?

Mr. BARNEY is still loyal to the Post Office savings, though most unhappy in his attempts to defend them. It will be remembered that a Parliamentary Commission was appointed to consider those savings, to decide as to their merit and fitness, and to advise if they should be permitted to remain or be wiped out. The Commission dealt with the matter in a careful report, in which the savings were strongly condemned. This report having been forwarded to the COLONIAL ARCHITECT drew forth a reply now before Parliament and the country. Mr. BARNEY is angry, and therefore discourteous in his reply. He condemns the Commission as incompetent, instead of attempting to prove their conclusions to be erroneous. He persists in regarding the argument as between realism and idealism in sculpture, when really it is nothing of the sort, but a simple question as to the correctness or otherwise of certain works of sculpture shown on the eastern front of the Sydney Post Office. This passage displays his main contention: "As to the assertion that the figures are untrue, unnatural, &c., this proves that natural objects, reproduced by art, are unsatisfactory to the ideal school, which considers that its function is to improve upon nature. Hence the unfairness of accepting the decision of a board of idealists in settlement of this question." But was it a board of idealists that first began the discussion on the matter? Are the majority of the people who pass up and down Pitt street idealists, or rather very practical, indeed realistic folk, easily contented with a fair presentment of their characteristic institutions and typical women and men? They object to the work because it is bad. Had Mr. BARNEY taken a design from Santa Maria Maggiore, or the Parthenon, or the Acropolis, and had the original been burlesqued as our modern life has been burlesqued, there certainly would have been as loud an outcry. The point must be insisted upon that it is not a question between the real and the ideal, but between the true and the false. "The subjects represented are as follow:—Telegraphy; law, physics, &c.; agriculture, banking; literature and the press; commerce and mining; science and art; post-office." How can Mr. BARNEY persist in the assertion that these institutions are worthily represented? Are they not rather degraded, derided, burlesqued, caricatured? Every line of the building, apart from that most ludicrous piece of ornamentation, speaks of grandeur, solidity, Nineteenth Century civilisation, and Australian strength. Those grinning figures in the spandrels provoke a smile and contempt, not mirth. As to the proposal to submit photographs of the completed work "to authorities on decorative carving in London, Paris, Milan, or Rome," that must be met by a strong protest. The carvings are supposed to represent our own lives, and we are better judges of the correctness, or the falsity, or the absurdity of that representation than the most highly authorised "authorities" of those distant cities.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

NOTWITHSTANDING the assurance of Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice in the House of Commons on Thursday, that the British Government had no intimation of the seizure of Kelung by the French, and that he did not credit the report of such seizure, the French occupation has been fully confirmed. In fact, it was acquired after occupation. M. Patenotre, the French representative, has intimated that his Government intends to keep possession of the place until the demands of France are satisfied. France at first asked for an indemnity of £10,000,000 francs, but is now willing to accept 80,000,000 francs. With regard to the Federation Enabling Bill, there is but little information in our cable messages this morning. Sir Stafford Northcote intimates his willingness to suppose the bill if the introduction has delayed it till October. The question of the franchise is still agitating the public mind of England. A great demonstration was held at Manchester on Friday night, in approval of the action of the Conservatives in opposing the measure and of the House of Lords in rejecting it. It will be recollected that one of the reasons which the Tories advanced against the bill was that it did not provide for a redistribution of seats simultaneously with the extension of the franchise. From another cable item it would appear that the intention of constructing a railway from Suakim to Berber, for facilitating military operations in the Soudan, has been abandoned, and it is now understood that if an expedition is sent to the relief of General Gordon, it will go by way of Dongola. The cricket match between the Australians and a Gloucestershire Eleven was drawn in favour of the home team.

THE death of two men whose names are well known is recorded in our cablegrams of this morning. Erasmus Wilson, surgeon, was born in 1809, became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1831, was elected fellow in 1840, and member of the council in 1870. He founded the Chair of Dermatology and Museum of Dermatology in the College of Surgeons in 1869, and was elected the first professor. Mr. Wilson, who was eminent for his knowledge of the diseases of the skin, began his professional life as an anatomist. He was the author of numerous works on dermatology and kindred sciences. The other name mentioned in our obituary notices is that of Mr. Francis Palgrave Barlee, F.R.G.S., C.M.G. He served in the English Ordnance Department from 1844 to 1855, when he was appointed Colonial Secretary of Western Australia, and was a member of the Executive and Legislative Councils of that colony. He was appointed Governor of British Honduras in 1877.

THE P. and O. Company's R. M. S. Indus reached Albany, King George's Sound, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 3 days 7 hours in advance of contract time. She brings the English mails, via Suez, to July 11. The Sydney portion of her mails will probably be delivered next Monday morning. In another column we publish a telegraphic summary of news brought by the Indus.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Cabinet will be held this afternoon to consider the railway policy of the Government.

THE Colonial Secretary has been advised by the Agent-General that he has purchased from Lord Brabourne a much larger number of documents relating to the early history of New South Wales than previously notified. Amongst these are autograph letters from Captain Cook dated 1772; letters of Captain Flinders, with the account and other papers relating to the Investigator's voyage; petitions of the "Inhabitants in New South Wales," signed by Governor Bligh; and an autograph account of the mutiny of the Bounty. The documents, which as autographs only are of considerable value, were purchased at a cost of about £240. The Agent-General is having them classified and arranged, and as soon as this has been completed they will be sent out to the colony.

THE following telegram on the subject of the Federation Enabling Bill was sent by the Colonial Secretary (Hon. Alexander Stuart) to the Premier of Victoria on Friday:—"I consider that undue haste has been used in London to procure the Enabling Bill, and have I deemed it necessary yesterday to send to our Agent-General the following telegram:—'We consider Gladstone's proposed submission Federation Enabling Bill premature until our Legislature considers Convention's resolutions, which it cannot do until present land legislation is disposed of. Federation without New South Wales not truly Australian, and this colony claims the fullest freedom in deciding whether to sanction or decline the Convention's proposals.' I have from the first told you that we could not imperil our most important question of land legislation by risking the discussion of the Federal Council Bill. However unconvenient delay in your opinion may be, I do not think your object would be gained by acting without New South Wales. The Land Bill passed the third reading this morning, 48 to 30. I hope its final settlement may not be much delayed, after which we will give Parliament the opportunity of discussing the Convention's resolutions."

THE particulars of a disastrous collision, which took place off Bradley's Head, between the intercolonial steamers Barrabool and Birkegate, will be found in another column. The occurrence took place about midnight on Saturday. The Birkegate is greatly damaged.

THERE are few clauses in the bill introduced into the Legislative Assembly by Mr. A. Byrne, for better securing the safety of persons travelling by stage carriages. Clause 1 requires every licensed vehicle carrying passengers to be provided with a sufficient and readily-available brake; also, that every shaft or pole-horse shall have good chest breeching while used; and that sufficient and properly-furnished lamps shall be carried—two in the case of a two-horse vehicle, and three if there are more than a pair of horses. Clause 2 provides penalties for neglect, and clause 3 saves all rights of remedy at common law. By clause 4 the inspection of vehicles is provided for, and clause 5 contains the short title.

TATTERSALL'S Club held its August meeting at Randwick on Saturday last, when the attendance was rather meagre, considering the excellence of the sport provided. The proceedings were honoured by the presence of His Excellency Lord Augustus Loftus; and the Artillery Band played on the lawn. Princess of Lorne, Nepialliza, and Brian O'Lynn, finished as named for the Tramway Handicap; and Battalion, Brian O'Lynn, and Lord Clifden, occupied the places at the end of the battle for the Loftus Handicap. The Two-year-old Stakes attracted a large field, and was won by Cairo, who was followed by Corie and Bon Accord; and it is worthy of record that the three colts which finished in front are all by Goldsbrough. The settling will take place at Tattersall's this evening.

THE following is the opinion given by Mr. J. E. Salomons, Q.C., on the Albury lighting-rate case:—"Municipality of Albury v. Fleming: The plaintiffs, it seems, rested their claims on the fact simply that the property rated was within the municipality. That, in my opinion, was not enough. The statute (sec. 165) authorises the council to levy a lighting rate 'upon the owners or occupiers of any property within the municipality deriving any benefit or advantage from such works' that is, 'the property for which the owner or occupier has to pay this special rate' must not only be within the municipality, but such property also must derive some benefit or advantage from the works to defray the cost of which the special rate is made. Now, here the question whether the defendant's property derives any such benefit or advantage can, it appears to me, be only answered in the negative, for how can it be said that a property which admittedly is the distance at least three and a-half miles from the nearest light' derives any benefit or advantage from such light, or from the construction or maintenance of the works for or relating thereto? The section cannot, I think, be read so as to mean that it is enough if the owner or occupier of the property derives a benefit or advantage. In my opinion the words 'benefit' or 'advantage' refer to the property, and to the property only. I am, therefore, of opinion that the defendant here was not liable, and that the decision ought to be in his favour. At the same time it is to be understood that the question, in my opinion, is not one of strict law, but is one of fact, to be decided according to the evidence. But if a jury have found that there was a benefit or advantage, then, in my opinion, such a finding would be against the evidence, and would be set aside."

THE annual report of the Secretary for Public Instruction in Queensland, for 1883, a copy of which has just reached us, shows considerable progress during the year. There had been seven new State schools opened, and two Provisional schools had been superseded by State schools. At the close of the year there were 862 State and Provisional schools in existence in the colony. There were 1016 teachers employed, being an increase of 69 for the year. The average enrolment of pupils was 40,282, and the average daily attendance was 32,247. Of the total enrolled 53 per cent. were boys, and 47 per cent. were girls. Particulars as to inspection, the training of teachers, &c., are also given.

THE memorial stone of an extension of the Newtown Baptist Church was laid on Saturday afternoon by Mr. John Morris. The extension will consist of a transept, vestries, and organ chamber, which are to cost £1202, and towards which (inclusive of the amount laid upon the memorial stone on Saturday) a sum of about £450 has been received. Amongst those who took part in the ceremony were the Revs. D. Jennick (pastor of the church), Robert Cleile, William Taylor, J. Hibberd, and J. Soper. The transept will be 40 feet in length and 28 feet in breadth, and at the back of it there will be two vestries divided by folding-doors. Above the vestries there is to be an organ chamber, which will be finished in front with a neat, ornamental iron rail. The fittings throughout will be of pine, and the roof will correspond with that of the present structure. At the ends of the transept are to be large triple-light windows, filled in with stained glass and coloured margins. The additions are of brick on stone foundations, and when completed will harmonise with and add to the appearance of the present structure. The lighting and ventilation have received every attention. The church, when the additions have been completed, will seat about 450 persons, including the choir. The architects for the additions are Messrs. Ellis and Slatyer, of Southampton-buildings, Pitt-street, and the contractors Messrs. Wood and Ward Brothers, of Riley-street, Sydney.

ON Saturday evening a lecture on "The influence of free trade on wages; or, Why working men should be free-traders," was delivered in the hall of the School of Arts by Mr. B. R. Wise, barrister-at-law. His Honor Mr. Justice Windeyer presided. The lecture occupied upwards of an hour and a-half in delivery, and the lecturer's arguments were frequently interrupted by the applause of a large audience. A report of the lecture appears in another column.

THERE is now on view at the establishment of E. J. Hollingdale and Son, Oxfordville Hall, King-street, a handsome gold chalice or colonial workmanship. This sacramental vessel, which is intended for the use of the altar at St. Joseph's, Balmain West, has been manufactured to the order of the members of the Apostleship of Prayer and the Society of the Blessed Virgin, whose gift it is. In design and workmanship the chalice is artistic, and the combination of plain and polished gold is exceedingly tasteful. The bowl and top of the shank are slightly ornamented, and the cup itself is highly polished, but without ornament. At the foot of the chalice there is an appropriate inscription.

SHORTLY before 1 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out on premises situated at 250, Sussex street, and occupied by a woman named Julia Russell, who carried on a grocery business. The origin of the fire is at present a mystery, but it is supposed to have started under a counter in the shop. The inmates of the place were in bed when the fire occurred, but were fortunately roused in time to make their escape. The Metropolitan Fire Brigade responded to an alarm which was promptly given, and succeeded in extinguishing the fire with the hand-pump, but not before the building and contents were considerably damaged. The contents of the place were insured in the City Mutual Insurance Company's office for £100. The building, which is a small structure, constructed of brick and roofed with iron, is said to be the property of Mrs. Potts.

A MAN named Raphael Costa, who is described as an agent, was brought before the Central Police Court bench on Saturday morning charged with having forged a promissory note for £300, and uttered the same to Isaac Himmelbloch with intent to defraud. The prosecutor carries on a money agency in Castlereagh-street, and the prisoner was given into the custody of Detective Wilmot by him on Friday afternoon. The promissory note purports to bear the signature of "Hardy Brothers," being drawn out in favour of the prisoner, and to be payable at the Australian Joint Stock Bank in two months from the 4th August, the alleged date of the drawing up of the document. On the application of the police the prisoner was remanded until Friday next.

SHORTLY before 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon some excitement was caused in Elizabeth-street through the bolting of a horse with cab attached from the cab-stand, St. James'-road. The animal took fright through the workers becoming disarranged, and traversed Elizabeth-street to the corner of Market-street at a terrific pace, much to the danger of a number of persons passing in the street at the time. At the Market-street corner one of the lamps of the cab was torn away through coming into contact with a post, and the runaway was eventually brought to a stand by a post opposite Singer's bicycle depot. The driver of the cab, Denis Monaghan, received no injury to his foot through being knocked down and run over. He was afterwards conveyed to the hospital.

A LITTLE commotion was occasioned in George-street shortly before 6 o'clock last night, owing to a collision between two cabs. The occurrence was said to be attributable to the fact that one of the cabmen was in an intoxicated state. Both cabs were seriously damaged, but fortunately the drivers escaped injury. The drunken cabman was afterwards accommodated with lodgings at the Central Police Station for the night, his horse and cab being placed in the police yard.

A DANGER of a serious nature which tram conductors are liable to, was illustrated in Oxford-street on Saturday. A tram was proceeding eastward, and as it passed some of the shops in the neighbourhood of Riley-street a horse attached to a spring-cart made a semicircular turn. The conductor of the tram was on the northern footboard, and the wheels of the cart being against the kerbing of that side of the street, one of the shafts struck him with great force in the stomach, the pressure being sufficient to break the glass door of the compartment of the tram opposite which he was standing. The conductor, James Williams, having recovered from the temporary shock, sounded his whistle and stopped the trams. He felt so ill that he was compelled to relinquish his position, and it was taken by a pointsman.

A MAN named Thomas Collins narrowly escaped being drowned last night through falling into the water at Circular Quay. He was sitting on one of the wharfs in a state of intoxication, and on rising to walk fell backwards into the water. The occurrence was witnessed by a man named John Taylor, who procured a boat, and with assistance managed to rescue the man.

A MEETING of members of the Church of England and others interested in carrying on special religious instruction in Public schools is to be held in the Masonic Hall, York-street, to-night. The Primate is to preside.

THE following is the report of the Prince Alfred Hospital for the week ending August 10:—No. of in-patients at last report, 69 males, 33 females: total, 102. Since admitted, 15 males, 8 females: total, 23. Discharged, 12 males, 7 females: total, 19. Died, 2 males. Remaining in hospital on August 10, 1884, 70 males, 34 females: total, 104.

THE following is the report of the Benevolent Asylum for the week ending August 7, 1884:—Admitted, 4 women, 5 children: births, 6; deaths, 2; discharged, 6 women, 12 children; remaining in the house, 90 women, 154 children: total, 245. Provisions distributed, 1380 loaves of bread, 1023lb. flour, 242lb. meat, 294lb. sugar, 784lb. tea, 454lb. rice, 22lb. oatmeal, 26lb. sago. Fresh applications for relief, 8; cases reported by the inspectors, 19; the result of which was that in four cases the relief was discontinued, and another did not require it. Total number of families relieved, 342.

FRANCE AND CHINA.

BOMBARDMENT AND OCCUPATION OF KELUNG.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, Aug. 9.

Notwithstanding the denial of Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice, the occupation of Kelung by the French is fully confirmed. M. Patenotre, the French representative, has notified China that it is the intention of the French to continue to hold Kelung in their possession until their demands are satisfied; at the same time he states that the indemnity claimed has been reduced to 80,000,000 francs.

HONGKONG, Aug. 10.

Intelligence was received here this morning that the French fleet, failing to obtain satisfaction from China for the recent violation of the treaty, has, under orders from Admiral Courbet, bombarded the town of Kelung for about an hour, at the end of which time the Chinese troops occupying the place withdraw. Admiral Courbet himself remains at Foochow, but he has despatched four of the vessels under his command to Woosung, at the entrance to the Shanghai River, where they have now taken up their position.

THE AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN IN ENGLAND.

(REUTER'S SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, Aug. 8.

The match between the Australian Eleven and Gloucestershire was resumed at Clifton to-day, when the Australians, with 14 to their credit, continued their innings. The attendance was again good, and, owing to the continuance of very fine weather, the wicket was lively and favoured the batsmen. The visitors retained possession of the wickets all day, and when time was called, they had made 202 for the loss of six wickets. The two highest scorers were M'Donnell, bowled, after a fine innings for 62; and Scott, who carried out his bat for 78, after a magnificent display of cricket. The other double figures were Bannerman, bowled, 22; Giffen, bowled, 48; Bonner, caught, 28; and Midwinter, bowled, 25.

LONDON, Aug. 9.

The above match was continued to-day, but under less favourable circumstances than those of the preceding days. The attendance of the public was good, but the weather was unpropitious, as rain fell at intervals, thus putting a temporary stop to the game. The Australians, who had lost eight wickets only yesterday, completed their innings for 314. Scott only added one to his score, being bowled for 79. Of the English bowlers Woof was most destructive, securing six wickets for 81 runs. On the county team going in for their second innings, runs began to come freely, and, despite the weather, a magnificent stand was made, the Australian bowling being completely mastered, especially by J. H. Brain, who played a grand innings for 108 runs before he was given out L.b.w. W. Pullan, who was in with him for some time, also showed excellent cricket, and, with W. G. Grace, added largely to the score. Both men were not out when the match was declared drawn, Pullan having 68 runs to his credit, and Grace 27. The score then stood—230 runs for the loss of two wickets only, one of which was secured by Giffen for 50 runs, the other by Boyle for 79 runs. The next match will commence on Monday against an Eleven of All England.

FORMATION OF A NEW MINISTRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WELLINGTON, SATURDAY.

Sir Julius Vogel has undertaken the formation of a new Ministry.

ARRIVAL OF THE M. M. STEAMER YARRA AT ADELAIDE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

ADELAIDE, SATURDAY.

The Messageries Maritimes Company's steamship Yarra which arrived last evening from Marseilles, 37 days out, brings the following passengers for Sydney:—Sir Thomas and Lady M'Ilwraith, child, and maid; Mrs. Shand, Misses Taylor, Bishop, Bernet, Cathala, Meinrad, Stuble, Gremer, Bruggman, Leonier, Stuyck, Himes, Gessler, Whair, O'Meara, and Alexandre, Mesdames Allison and Constantin, and Miss Bernard.

The Yarra sailed for Melbourne at 7 o'clock last evening.

DISTRIBUTION OF RELIEF TO THE POOR IN ADELAIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, SUNDAY.

The final distribution of food by the Relief Committee before disbanding took place on Saturday afternoon and lasted five hours, when 300 persons were relieved. A special committee took the statistics as to name, nationality, length of residence in the colony, number of children attending day and Sunday schools and at work, religion, occupation, and other valuable figures. The applicants represented 400 persons besides themselves, the totals being 497 males and 567 females. The statistics relative to the children showed that 76 per cent. of school-going age have attended day and 50 per cent. Sunday schools. The religious of the applicants are as follows:—104 Roman Catholics, 75 Anglicans, 84 Wesleyans, 12 Baptists, the others being in very small numbers, but amongst them there was neither a Chinaman nor a Jew. Fifty of the applicants were widows. At the close of the distribution the committee met, and Alderman Hilder's generous action in giving all of the soup was suitably acknowledged. A special vote of thanks was passed commending the progressors of the Register for their action in the inauguration of the movement. It is stated that the necessity for the present is over. One committeeman has found work for over 100 people.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, SUNDAY.

On Saturday morning the Chief Secretary received a telegram from Dr. Landon, who was despatched from Adelaide early in the week to investigate the case of supposed smallpox at Border Town, stating that the patient Collins is convalescent, after 12 days' incubation. The rashes are now falling off, leaving pits. The two constables who arrested Collins are also convalescent. One of them had a copious and the other a slight rash, perfectly characteristic of variola.

The latest report from Robert Town says that a public meeting has been held, at which it was decided to call upon the Government to strictly isolate all of the persons who have come in contact with the case of smallpox in the neighbourhood, pending the receipt of Dr. Landon's opinion. Dr. Parker, the nurse, Dr. Landon, and all the patients are now isolated, and none of them will be allowed their liberty for at least a week. Collins was suffering from semi-confluent smallpox, and his wife was very bad case, and he owes his recovery to the attention which was bestowed upon him by Constables Thornton, Bruce, and Hills, the two former of whom had a mild attack of smallpox, but they are now convalescent.

OUTRAGE BY BLACKS IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, SUNDAY.

The police have received information that a station near Anna Reservoir, in the far north, had been attacked by the blacks on Thursday last, and burnt to the ground. Two men, named Harry Figg and Thomas Gardner, were speared, but they are not dead. A strong party of police will proceed at once to punish the offenders. It seems that the blacks have been very troublesome of late, killing cattle, and a few days ago a party of troopers endeavoured to arrest the natives who had the meat in their possession, but they were resisted, when the police fired and wounded several of them.

SHOOTING AFFRAY NEAR DARLINGTON POINT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAY, SATURDAY.

A serious shooting affray took place at the Waddel Hotel, on Waddel Station, near Darlington Point, on Saturday morning. It appears that four station labourers had been drinking at the hotel during Friday night, and when it closed they went to an old hut that was used as a store and continued drinking. Among them was a man named Ted Davies, aged 22, married, with two children, he being constantly a stranger, and Thomas Leslie, an old hand in the district, who is about 40 years of age. Davies was sweeping in the hut, and a quarrel appears to have taken place, which Davies ordered Leslie and the male to clear out. They did not go, and Davies states that Leslie took up a knife to do bodily harm, whereupon Davies caught an old gun which was in a corner of the hut, and pointed it at him to keep him away, when it went off, and a charge of slugs was lodged in Leslie's arm, shattering the bone. Davies went at once to Darlington Point and gave himself up to the police, and in the meantime Leslie's mate bound up his arm as well as he could. Constable Simpson immediately proceeded to the scene of the affray, and found Leslie lying at the Waddel Hotel. The persons who were present state that they are not clear as to what happened, as they were all under the influence of liquor. Leslie was brought to the Hay Hospital by train to-day, and Davies was placed in the lockup. Both men travelled in the same carriage from Darlington Point, and Leslie fainted repeatedly on the way, as he was very weak through loss of blood. It is not anticipated that the contusion will end fatally, unless erysipelas sets in; but Leslie is sure to lose his arm.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

LONDON, JULY 11.

At half-past 1 on the morning of the 9th instant the Lords, after the second day's brilliant debate, rejected the second reading of the Franchise Bill, the vote on which has already been called. The case for and against the bill was well summed up by Earl Rosebery and the Marquis of Salisbury. The former admitted the Constitutional right of the Lords to reject the measure, but he denied their moral right to do so, and stoutly claimed that the bill particularly affected the Commons, and did not affect the Lords, a dangerous agitation was sure to follow its rejection. The Marquis of Salisbury declared that the Conservatives did not oppose the extension of the franchise, the sole question which they had at heart being the distribution of political power so as to protect the interests of all classes of the electors. As the Government during the last four years had not been able to keep their promises, he was justified in questioning as to whether their assurances of bringing in a redistribution bill offered sufficient security. Earl Granville replied that with the concurrence of his Ministerial colleagues, he would declare that if the Government failed to introduce a Redistribution Bill next year, they would be open to a charge of absolute breach of faith.

A numerously attended meeting of the Liberal members was held yesterday afternoon in the principal hall of the Foreign Office. Mr. Gladstone, in directing these proceedings, said that the Cabinet had unanimously decided that the present session should end very shortly, and that the new session would assemble about October 20, when the Franchise Bill would be reintroduced, passed again, and then sent up to the Lords. Mr. Gorchen expressed a hope that the liberal agitation throughout the country during the recess would not be pushed to the extreme of humiliating the Lords before the people. Mr. John Bright announced that he would take part in the agitation, and he hoped that some restriction would be placed upon the present powers of the House of Lords, which, he believed, could not be a permanent institution in a free country. Five Conservative peers—the Duke of Norfolk, Lords Jersey and Lathom, and Lords Redesdale and Haldon—voted with the minority, and six Liberal peers in the majority, namely, the Marquis of Clanricarde, Earl Cosford, and Lords De Freyne, Fitzhardinge, Lyveden, and Monteagle. Lord Tennyson, who voted for the last time, was in the minority. Two archbishops and 10 bishops were in the minority, and one, the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, was in the majority. A formidable Liberal agitation in favor of the Franchise Bill is now being organised throughout the country, and large popular meetings are announced to be held in London, Birmingham, and other principal towns. Mr. Gladstone intends to stand by the Ministerial course, and he has the Queen's assent in order to bring the session to an early close. In view of the fact that a large number of members have been compelled to abandon the London Municipal Government Bill, the Irish Sunday Closing Bill, the Criminal Lunatics Amendment Bill, and several other measures, the autumn session will be devoted to the consideration of the ordinary session of Parliament, extending into next year, but a separate and completed session ending with the prorogation, and solely devoted to the Franchise Bill. The present session will be prorogued at the beginning of August. Mr. Gladstone stated that the Government had proposed to the Tory leaders among the Peers that both Houses should, on the responsibility of the Government, be invited to pass identical resolutions setting forth that such Houses passed the Franchise Bill, relying on the pledges of the Ministry to introduce a redistribution bill next year, and to make the passing of that measure the great object of their efforts. The resolution so passed would have been presented by a joint address to the Crown, and would have had the effect of securing the passing of a comprehensive redistribution scheme next session. The Conservative peers on Lord Salisbury's advice rejected the proposal. Party feeling is now strongly stirred in the Houses of Commons and Lords. Conservatives, Radicals and Tories are busying themselves up for an arbitrated fight during the next three months.

SUNDAY.

A large number of electors assembled in the School of Arts at Wallsend last night to witness the presentation of an address to Mr. A. A. F. Tighe, the late member for Northumberland. The chair was taken by Mr. James Richardson, Mayor of Plattsburg. The address, which was very handsomely framed, was of a valedictory character, and referred to Mr. Tighe's excellent character as a private citizen and gentleman, and member of Parliament. It was presented, on behalf of the electors, by Mr. F. Craig, of Wallsend, in an able speech, to which Mr. Tighe feelingly responded, and was cheered. Messrs. Melville, Hatcher, Dunsmuir, and Ellis, M.L.A., were present, and made very appropriate speeches in the occasion, expressing their sincere regret that failing health had compelled Mr. Tighe to resign his seat. Mr. Fletcher was warmly received on his first appearance in public since his late accident. In his still to use a crutch and a stick at walking. The proceedings were very enthusiastic, and terminated with the usual 3x and ball.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

TATTERSALL'S AUGUST MEETING.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 9.

Judges, Mr. J. B. Offaly; stewards, the committee of Tattersall's Club; handicapper, Mr. A. Sayer; starter, Mr. W. Hanton. Timekeeper, Mr. George Carter; clerk of the course, Mr. J. Ashworth; clerk of the scales, Mr. P. B. Winfield; secretary, Mr. James Perry.

Although the weather was beautifully fine and the programme thoroughly attractive, the attendance at Randwick on Saturday last was not nearly as numerous as the anticipated. His Excellency Lord Augustus Loftus and several distinguished visitors were present. The Artillery Band performed upon the lawn, and amongst the items were "Oh the o Dipsi" and other selections from "Pathence." The luncheon was up to the average, but the attendance gave cause for complaint, still, though there was anything but a number attendance in the paddock, the workers at the refreshment bars were too few to meet the demands made upon their attentions. Consequently, the attendance of waiters complained for the Hurdle Race, and prices changed so much that it was not until the last moment that a favourite was made, when Muffin, an opportunity representative, was elected to the post at Bookie of 7 to 1, while Velletti, another prominent candidate, was next in request at a shilling more. Prince Leopold set till he fell, when Dispatch took command, but came to grief over the fence at the seven-furlong post, and Rosewitch, who had thoroughly caught in the stretch, for he was dragged for 50 or 60 yards, and had a wonderful escape from being killed or seriously injured. After Dispatch went down Velletti had it all his own way, and was easily the fine engine. The two could hardly be regarded as having been truly run, for there is no doubt that Velletti appeared to take matters very quietly, perhaps with a view to future events, a very large field faced the flag for the Tramway Handicap, and after considerable time had elapsed was given a fair start. Hesitancy let to this disaster when Velletti set, and Bryan O'Lynn, who had been made a red-hot favourite, appeared at the front, but Princess of Lorne and Begadiden supplied him in the run home, and the mare won by nearly two. Bran the colt, who raised home like a racehorse. The filly, Fleet afforded a surprise. The winner turned up in Payne, a son of John Bull, who also pick up the second place in the race, and taught Bryan O'Lynn Nicholson, young shot, had never faced a flag before, left Paddock for the Tramway, 7 to 2 against Velletti, 5 to 1 against Bryan O'Lynn, and 10 to 1 against Begadiden. The layers of odds displayed their liberality by offering 7 to 2 against the field, and, above as it certainly was, that price was accepted about Velletti. Bran of Shakespeare, and Lady Sophie. When the flag went down the youngsters were well together, but there soon marked out, and a pretty race resulted in a victory by Cadogan by Goldsbrough from Thrace, who took the favourite by a long neck, and after them came Bon Accord, by Goldsbrough from Mercy Thought; it is worthy of note that the three which filled the places are sons of Goldsbrough, a fact that must be particularly gratifying to Mr. Reynolds, of Doncaster. No less than 21 sailed for the Lofting Handicap, and on the strength of her brilliant victory Princess of Lorne was made first favorite. The field gave great feel of trouble, and Hermione, who had Lambkeeper in the saddle, was sent back into the paddock for disobeying orders. The mount was then given to Small, and the old grey had hardly stepped on to the course, when the signal was given to a good start. Drummer Boy, Hermione, Princess of Lorne, and Bathilde getting first away, but the latter soon had to the front at Mills, and was never caught. After the race a scramble to see who was first, and Lambkeeper was disqualified for riding for his mount. The matching is a severe one, as it will deter the left from sitting at any of the Spring meetings. The jockeys of the colors are very difficult to manage, and every instance are often necessary to compel them to obey orders, but in this instance there is more than a doubt as to whether Mr. Hanton caused the race offender to be punished. Ellis and Greenhead, the riders of Drummer and Hermione, allowed their horses to break away unfairly, and upon nearly every occasion when a break-away occurred, their horses were at the front and over the mark, and they and those who emulated, taught and refused to take their horses appeared to be much more to blame than the unfortunate lad Lambkeeper. Messrs. Smith, Hinds, and Thompson and petty imposed the prized stand, the stewards' room, etc., and proposed himself highly pleased with the appointments. The following are the results:—

Betting: 7 to 2 against Muffin, 5 to 1 against Velletti, 7 to 1 against Prince Leopold, 8 to 1 against Dispatch, 9 to 1 v. Fifteen Leopold, 7 to 10 to 1 v. any other.

Prince Leopold was the first to begin, and led over the first fence followed by Arthur, Gloucester, Dispatch, and Alpha; but the third fence proved too much for the leader, who rolled hopelessly over it, and Arthur led past the stand by half a dozen lengths, followed by Dispatch, Gloucester, and Velletti, with the others in close rear and whipped in by Clive. Dispatch then took quite command, but fell over the fence at the seven-furlong post, and Velletti was left at the front. He maintained his lead afterwards, and was easily from Muffin, who was a fight clear of Bran, Clive, and Bran, three clear Dispatch, in pretty close rear. Alpha was a good fourth, and was succeeded by Dispatch, Arthur, Lamb, Draper, and Dispatch, who had been remounted and was received with a burst of applause. Dunbrody pulled up slightly lame. The following are the details:—

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

A house crammed with an audience full of excited impatience to hear a favourite opera greeted the revival of "Fatinitza" on Saturday night at the Theatre Royal. The overture, a very bright one, was excellently played, and as the curtain rose on the "twenty love-sick maidens," there was one of those simultaneous and general bursts of approbation which are real music to artists' and managers' ears. Miss Ida Osborne was the Lady Angela, Miss Lillie Red Saphir, Miss Maggie Stewart, Lady Ella; the former sang the solo parts in the first chorus very pleasingly, and the feeling in the entrance of the village milkmaid, brought an enthusiastic welcome for Miss Annie Montague, who sang the first song beautifully. The dragoons were equally welcomed, especially the trio of officers, who were—Colonel Calverley, Mr. Grundy; Major Murgatroyd, Mr. John Forde; Lieutenant the Duke of Dunstable, Mr. W.E. Woodfield. The latter has interpolated a fine, dashing song, which he sang with much spirit, and though his speaking voice is not equal to his singing organ, he made some good points in the dialogue. Mr. Grundy, too, added through his patter song at a good pace, and was well rewarded in the plaudits of his hearers. The note of favour in applause fell to the share of Mr. H. Young as Hawthorne, and however good he was at the original performance he has so elaborated it here, that it would be very troublesome work for any other person to attempt the part in Sydney. He has to a study throughout, over the means to have the appropriate facial expression, and its few minutes he passed set the piece was finished amidst enough gratification for a whole evening in any one who watched his varying changes of expression during the inspiration of the fleshly poet. Thus as the maidens show their fatal devotion, the chorus of dragoons vigorously expressed their wish, all ears were delighted with one of Sullivan's finest conceits; the effect of this duel chorus is charming. "Sir Random's confession of his sham aristocracy was capital follow naturally, and the delight was at great as the audience had never heard it before. Miss Montague as Miss Catherine sang the duet "Long Years Ago" exceedingly well. Mr. Charles Thorne, jun., was warmly received as Giuseppe, and the duet, which is one of the gems of the work, with its quaint fervour of sotto voce, and Mr. Turner and Miss Montague at their best; all their performances caused them, there would have been nothing but praise to be said of them. Unfortunately the two worst scenes in the dialogue that the frequently cause to a full stop, and the prompter's voice be heard all over the house—a state of things unprecedented in the history of the present management. For the musicians of Mr. Chas. Turner and Miss Annie Montague the highest commendation is freely given, but the same said yet characteristic this makes it equally necessary to add that "never" were undoubtedly the weakest elements in the cast, and that the success which attended the work as a whole was due to other members of the company, who, if not good as operatic artists, are infinitely superior in their lighter qualifications, and in their skill at mapping themselves to the requirements of the hour. Miss Fanny Liddard sang and acted Lady Jane with considerable merit; she is slight, diffident, or prematurely age her face; at present it is attractive enough to contest her Duplicitous; with after-experience she took up the role and prepared her for the comic scenes, and proved herself the tendrily pathetic melody "Silvered is the raven hair" with good effect; in other words this might be chosen for a drawing-room ballad. The duet "Sing and Sigh," which is the most conventional and indeed the only really common-place thing in the piece—between Hawthorne and Lady Jane, so pleased the public that three repetitions were demanded. The pretensions, ejaculations, and grimaces of Dunstable are so realistic that these appeared quite the popular character of the number. The officers, in their perceptibly stiffness and constitutionally utter conditions, were also very amusing, and the quartette in which they are joined by the Duke Ellis and Sigbin was well sung. Grossmeier's duet with Sulphurous was more a farce than a vocal performance. Mr. Vernon made the most for the Sultan, and kept it up so spiritedly that Grossmeier was compelled to follow, and he little lowlily Sulphurous. The choruses were all very well sung, the beautiful sextette "I hear the sufferers of the sinking vessel" was most grateful to the ear. It is charmingly written; the dragoons do their work in a hearty evidently style, and the maidens are appropriately delicious. The entry in the Trick act has a new backing, which bears Rossini's stamp, and the slade in the second act is very picturesque. The orchestra, under Mr. Van Gibbs's direction, played remarkably well. The "Fatinitza" will be played for a little week only. It is a great treat to hear the music, and the greater part of the opera goes successfully well. Dr. Verne is stage sufficient to carry the work through with success.

OPERA HOUSE.

"Bistouri," an English adaptation of Victorien Sardou's play of that name, was produced at the Opera House on Saturday night, and achieved a success. The piece is a satire on the custom which prevails in France of taking surgical operations, and of the discomfort often felt by the parties to such a match. Madame de Fromville (Mrs. Janie Lee), married to a man (Mr. James Cardon) much older than herself, sees that he neglects her, and asks for advice in a friendly way from a friend with his cousin, Mr. George Forbes), whom she intends to wed as soon as she can procure a divorce. The Code Napoleon makes separation for divorcing a husband and wife who had married without consent, but they both hesitate, and as one day cannot longer live together, and it is done with the greatest difficulty that a severance of the marital tie can be obtained from the Ecclesiastical Court. In 1863 an attempt was made in the French assembly to pass a Divorce Bill, but it failed owing to the unanimous opposition of the Vatican. Thousands of Gordon's pills sold at this very time. Madame De Fromville is living with Adhemar, and Morisson is paying devoted attention to Mademoiselle Estelle de Brionne (Miss Blanche Lewis), husband and wife being mutually jealous of each other. Adhemar forges a telegram to the effect that the Divorce Bill has become law, the husband and wife agree to celebrate their respective freedom by a "divorce" dinner at a fast restaurant, and then, as the lover is flushed and seems inclined to be rather too demonstrative that such is actually entitled for the other, and the comedy ends happily. This is a very slight idea, but the dialogue is bright and the situations are good. Miss Jennie Lee interpreted the character of the fascinating, thoughtless, fashionable wife, who only learns to know her husband's worth as she is contemplating leaving him, and the piquant, childish coax of her acting won her many rounds of applause on Saturday night. Miss Blanche Lewis made a very lovely Madame de Brionne, and acted with spirit and effect; Miss Ethel Palmer was an excellent Nelle de Louze; Miss Florence Lewis was a charming Clarisse; and Miss Ada Lee was a very fascinating soubrette. Mr. James Cardon played the part of de Fromville with considerable domination; Mr. Edwin Palmer did well as the peppery old soldier, Colonel Bastion; Mr. George Forbes made a fine study of the empty-headed dandy, Adhemar; and Mr. Hedy Lester as the waiter was thoroughly stunning. The piece was well cast, and the dresses and the surroundings were lovely; assured by the many funny situations which occur in it.

GAIETY THEATRE.

Hoyer's Juvenile Opera Company produced "Pinafore" at the Gaiety Theatre on Saturday night, and performed it with an evident enjoyment of its fun and satire, and with an amount of ability which a company of adults have rarely exceeded here. Miss Amelia Hodge, as Josephina, sang her concealed here. Miss Amelia Hodge, as Josephina, sang her music correctly and acted gracefully, and Miss Amy Clarke, in the part of Sir Joseph Rackstraw, displayed her possession of a lovely voice, which we hope will not be overstrained. Miss Lily Inman, as Sir Joseph Porter, Master H. Stephenson, as Captain Corcoran, Master Willie Driscoll, as Dick Deadeye, and Miss Fanny Stanley, as Buttercup—all well, and the performance was well received.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Federal Minstrels have been performing at the Academy of Music for over a hundred nights, and as there is no diminution of patronage, the hall being crowded nearly every evening, they seem likely to remain here permanently. Their latest programme forms its object of taking people laughs, and dyspeptics would find a night at the Academy of Music more pleasant, and perhaps just as effective, as a visit to the doctor. In the first part Mr. Hunt sings a song full of genuine humour, entitled "Give what you can to those in distress," and Mr. Beaumont Read, who was relegated to the pathetic, throbbing ring which was so odious when he first came here with Madame Anna Bishop, sings "Only a pansy blossom." Then come the Drake, the stands, followed by Mr. Johnny Cowen's humorous songs, Mr. Bent's musical sketch "He would in an actor," and Mr. Carroll's baritone and falsetto singing; the performance concluding with "Home Comforts," an original farce, in which Mr. Frank Hussey plays with funny effect the part of a bachelor.

NEW MASONIC HALL.

The Baldwins are continuing their feats of legerdemain at the place of entertainment, and on Saturday were fairly patronized. Though many of the tests have been oft repeated, the deft manner in which they are performed entitles them to notice, and they are applauded as freely as if they were new. Those which possess the charm of novelty, such as card reading and divining the numbers on bank-notes, were favoured, with unqualified applause, as were also the valuable performances of Mr. Walter Harland.

ENTERTAINMENT AT GLADESVILLE.

A very enjoyable entertainment was afforded the patients of the Hospital for the Insane, Gladesville, on Thursday evening, the 7th instant, through the kindness of Madame Marius. As on a former occasion, Madame Marius had the assistance of Miss Eva Thompson and the Misses Thompson, which was further augmented this time by Madame King, Mrs. Moulton, and Mr. Sinclair. The programme was well chosen, judging by the manifestations of appreciation by the audience, and included "The Miller and the Boy," sung by Madame Marius; "The Better Land," by Miss Eva Thompson; "Come back to Erin," by Mrs. Moulton; a reading, "Mrs. Candle on the Freemasons," by Madame King; pianoforte pieces by the Misses Thompson; and humorous recitations by Mr. Sinclair. Concerts of this kind are a valuable adjunct in the treatment of patients in hospitals for the insane—tending materially to their mental improvement, besides affording them real pleasure.

THE BOTANIC GARDENS.

On Saturday afternoon large numbers of ladies and gentlemen assembled in the Botanic Gardens to listen to the band of H. M. S. Nelson. The gardens are seldom fairly opting venues, and the weather being delightful a pleasant afternoon was spent. Gay costumes were numerous, and besides adding to the brightness of the scene, shared with the music much admiration. The band, which for excellence has now assumed the premier position in the city, was under the direction of Mr. Daley. They rendered a programme comprising several operatic selections and high-class compositions, as well as a pretty march composed by Mr. Daley, and introducing the popular air, "Wait till the clouds roll by," and a gallop entitled "Nelson," composed by one of the musicians of the band named Harper.

A very successful entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, was given on Friday night by the Golden Chain Order of Good Templars, Lodge 370, in the Congregational School-hall, Halfway-street, Petersham, and was well attended. Among other items on the programme, all of which were well received, was a performance on the mouth-organ, which was very skilfully rendered, and elicited hearty applause.

A NEGLECTED INDUSTRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have repeatedly written general letters on the iron-smelting and kindred industries. My old friends are much engaged that way in England, and I occasionally get letters giving me very authentic information thereon. Now, I have long alone held that the good will ever be down this country to force upon it any new industry in an unhealthy manner. And iron-making has a thousand difficulties here which cannot at present be overcome, and it is useless to say they can. Will "Iron and Steel" furnish your columns with such returns as will show exactly how far the old blast furnace and puddling furnace process has been abandoned, and, consequent thereon, the wholesale stand-up of old style of plant. Will he also inform your readers as to the wholesale alteration of the plant in the Bessemer process of steel-making? Unfortunately alterations are not actually taking place; but there is a limit to all things, and such a wholesale clearing off of supposed-to-be of the old plant would be simply ruinous ruin to thousands upon thousands in England. Then, again, will the same writer inform us exactly the conditions under which iron is made direct from the ore, instead of the blast furnace and puddling process, how far it is taking place now, whether it will apply to the general run of the output of all the iron ore, or whether it only applies to certain kinds, qualities, percentages, and special purities. It will do this colony decided harm to deal in doubtful information, and who ever volunteers any such is no friend to the colonies. I volunteer no information myself, though I could very easily do that, for at present it is a waste of time to do it, and every thoughtful-minded man knows the folly and harm of creating speculative transactions, which will only prove abortive. As a thoroughly commercial citizen no one wishes the entire prosperity of these colonies more than myself; but I cannot help seeing the absurdity of after-reported assertions, such as for instance, that we only are possessed of the highest class of ores, when not only has England ores that rather to surpass, but our own are certainly untried on anything like a large scale, and we have had nothing but failures hitherto.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Having noticed in your issue several paragraphs on the iron and steel industry and the working of the same, being the owner of one present Bessemer Plant, Pyrmont, and Sir Henry Bessemer's patent, I feel in justice to myself and those at present engaged in the iron manufacture to say a few words respecting my present iron rolling mill, the plant of which are similar and in every respect capable of producing iron equal both in quantity and quality to any well-known one for the manufacture of iron in England. In fact, the Blaenavon and Ebbw Vale Mills are from the works of Thomas Perry and Sons, and the Pyrmont made in the colony from English designs. Rolling-mills for iron require to be of a specific class, and have no competition whatever with rolling-mills for steel. For instance, in the manufacture of iron the original moulding or reverberatory furnace is still used in all parts of the world. Steel rolling is a branch of itself, and continue to special manufactures, and under special appliances. The writer of the paragraph who signs himself "Iron and Steel" either knows nothing of the manufacture of iron, or is trying to enlighten the public on what he is not capable of proving to be true. As regards the quality of our iron ores, I contend that many of our iron ores are too rich of themselves to make good pig iron for producing good malleable iron. The average percentage of iron ores used for such pig should not exceed 60 per cent. But for making steel for pig it may be used as high as 70 per cent. I may state that pig iron for making steel is not used in the manufacture of good malleable iron in any instance. As the cost of manufacturing iron in New South Wales at the present time, I am prepared to prove that her iron can, and is now being made and sold to compete with the best English-made iron. As to steel rails, there is not the slightest doubt but what steel rails equal if not superior to any imported can be made in the colony, and I have seen a sample of steel made that is displeased with over that of making her iron. If the writer signing himself "Iron and Steel" understands the manufacture of steel in all its branches, he no doubt will be able to find a billet in time. I myself confess that I am not a steel-maker, but I have been engaged for 40 years standing, out of which I have been 25 years making iron in the colonies. As regards the statements or allegations of my original letter-writer, after my meeting those and carrying them on for some years, I cannot otherwise find or see any reason to withdraw one word. He has held to my charge, which I am willing to let the public judge for themselves, treating that the day is not far distant when iron and steel making will come to be from New South Wales and other parts of the colonies.

ENOCH HUGHES, Manager Eskbank Ironworks, Lithgow.

TWO DISTINCT O'BRIENS.—During the debate on the Franchise Bill in the House of Commons, on the 7th June, during the early hours of the morning, Mr. William O'Brien, editor of the United Ireland, made a speech, in which he went out of his way to make an unprovoked attack on that temperance. He was repeatedly interrupted by Sir Patrick O'Brien, member of Parliament for King's County, who finally gave him the lie direct. Both of the O'Briens, when, by the way, are not relatives, lost their tempers, and each challenged the other to come outside the second precincts of the House and there settle their differences. Sir Patrick appears to have been in dead earnest, for he immediately retired to the river terrace in the rear of the houses of Parliament, expecting that his antagonist would follow. William, however, did not deign to attend, and Sir Patrick has ever since been denouncing him as a coward.

Epps' Cocoa.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack whenever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in ½lb. packets, by grocers, labelled—"James Epps and Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England."—[ADVT.]

TITLE: TORRENS' ACT. Terms at sale.

BY ORDER OF THE MORTGAGEE.

THE JUNCTION BAY GOLD MINE,
situate about 14 miles from Cooma,
BATHURST DISTRICT, on the BEGHOLA RIVER,
comprising 11 acres Auriferous Land,
Half Interest in 70 acres Mineral Lease, together with
THE WHOLE OF THE MINING AND GOLD-EXTRACTING PLANT.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH will sell by PUBLIC AUCTION, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, sydney, on FRIDAY, 15th August, at 11 o'clock,
The above valuable property, which, with a small outlay, it is estimated will give profitable returns account.

THE LAND is above the lowest seam the Crown under the mineral gold-mining leases, and is composed of a succession of layers of gold-bearing material, varying from 1 to 3 feet in thickness, interspersed by layers of slate, &c., the prospects showing it to one pennyweight to half an ounce per ton. An immense quantity is opened out and ready to be run down to the battery as a small outlay. The whole of the ends round towards the battery, and can be put down at a nominal cost, per ton by the tunnels, jassies, and tramways, now in working order.
THE BATTERY consists of 50-head Stampers, Tosco, &c., 4 Copper Tables, mostly chrome silver-plated; Blanket Tables, Boiling, Shaking, Grading, &c., complete; 1 Pneumatic Concentrators, Amalgamating Barrels; Retorts, Tubs, &c.
THE MOTIVE POWER consists of James Leffel's celebrated 45-inch Turbine—connected with Water flume by about 300 feet 6-inch Piping, and about 500 feet 4-inch Piping, to supply water for battery purposes. There is also one of Gay, Swift, and Co's 8-inch Turbines, complete, for extra power, and a large quantity of Engineering and Blacksmiths' Tools, and other materials for carrying on the business.
THE MINE is now well opened out both in the old and new workings from the battery at the bed of the river to the top of the hill—a very steep zone—by tramways, tunnels, passes, cuttings, and open faces, opening to supply a vast quantity of crushing material, and also pole-hoisting pitties reefs, about 50 tons being broken out, about 200 feet Trans Balls, several Trusts, and considerable Mining Gear.
The buildings comprise Battery Shed, Office, Store, Blacksmith's Shop, &c.
In fact there is nearly everything to carry on the mine successfully. THE PROPERTY IS NOW WORKING, and can be visited, examined, and return to Sydney in 36 hours.
A FULL INVENTORY can be inspected, and every information furnished at the Rooms.
